Homrich of Alpine Church Road, Comstock Park, to Alexander Arends, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Arends, Griggs Street, Grand Rapids. The Rev. Fr. William Hoogterp officiated at the nuptial mass.

The empire bodice and the three quarter Dior sleeves were accented with lace appliques and seed pearls. Matching appliques formed the hemline and scalloped cage back of the dress. A cathedral length veil of illusion fell gently away from the mantilla headpiece of the same peau d'ange lace and she carried a cascade bouquet.

Miss Irene Homrich of Comstock Park was her sister's honor attendant attired in a yellow linen floor-length gown accented

The Star Spangled Banner

How To Display

The story of the origin of our National flag parallels the story of the origin of our country.

According to the U.S. Marine Corps manual, "The star is a symbol of the heavens and the divine goal to which man has aspired from time immemorial, the stripe is symbolic of the rays of light emanating from the sun. Both themes have long been represented on the standards of nations." The first flag of the colonists to have any resemblance to the present Stars and Stripes was the Grand Union flag. It consisted of thirteen stripes, alternately red and white, representing the thirteen colonies, with a blue field in the upper left hand corner.

After many trials and errors, by both state and national government, General George Washington, as he watched the Star Spangled Banner being flown at the head of the Continental Army, described its symbolism as follows: "We take the stars from heaven, the red from our mother country, separating it by white stripes, thus showing that we have separated from her, and the white stripes go down to posterity representing liberty."

July 4, 1818, following a suggestion by Captain Samuel C. Reid, U.S. Navy, a resolution was adopted by Congress which officially set the standards for the United States flag . . . the stripes were to remain thirteen in number as representing the colonies which struggled to found the nation, and that a star be added to the blue field for each additional state coming to the Union.

Thus the Stars and Stripes came into being; born amid the strife of battle, it became the standard around which a free people struggled to become a free nation.

YMCA Offers Courses on "How to Study in College"

College-bound high school graduates of the Grand Rapids area will get a chance to learn how to survive in college. The nationally recognized course "How to Study in College" will again be offered by the West YMCA from August 11 to August 15.

The National Flag should be raised and lowered by hand. It should be displayed only from sunrise to sunset, or between such hours as may be designated by proper authority. Do not raise the flag while it is furled. Unfur, then hoist quickly to the top of the staff. Lower it slowly and with dignity. Place no objects on or over the flag. Do not place articles on a speaker's table covered with the flag.

When displayed in the chancel or on a platform in a church, the flag should be placed on a staff at the clergyman's right; other flags at his left. If displayed in the body of the church, the flag should be at the congregation's right as they face the clergyman.

Do not use the flag as a portion of a costume or athletic uniform. Do not embroider it upon cushions or handkerchiefs nor print it on paper napkins or boxes. When displayed over the middle of the street, the flag should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east and west street or to the east in a north and south street.

When displayed with another flag from crossed staffs, the flag of the United States of America should be on the right (the flag's own right) and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag. When it is to be flown at half-mast, the flag should be hoisted to the peak for an instant and then lowered to the half-mast position; but before lowering the flag for the day, it should again be raised to the peak. Half-mast is meant hauling down the flag to one-half the distance between the top and the bottom of the staff. On Memorial Day display the flag at half-mast until noon only; then hoist to top of staff.

When flags of states or cities or pennants of societies are flown on the same halyard with the flag of the United States of America, the latter should always be at the peak. When flown from adjacent staffs, the Stars and Stripes should be hoisted first and lowered last. When extended from a rope over a sidewalk, the flag should be hoisted out from the building, toward the pole, union first. When using the flag to cover a casket, the union is at the head and over the left shoulder . . . it should not be lowered into the grave or allowed to touch the ground.

Other than being flown, the flag should be displayed flat, indoors or out. When against a wall, the union should be uppermost, to the flag's own right, the observer's left. It should be displayed in a window the same way.

AT ALL TIMES . . . THE NATIONAL FLAG IS FOREMOST, FIRST AND AT THE HIGHEST PEAK OF A PROCESSION. When the flag is ready for disposal, and according to an approved custom, the Union is first cut from the flag; then the two pieces which no longer form a flag, are cremated. (The above information taken from "How to Respect and Display Our Flag" written by the United States Marine Corps.)
